MUST ADD BEAUTY OF VOICE TO POEM

SAYS PROFESSOR HOWARD R. DRIGGS IN ADDRESS TODAY

MUST SPEAK DISTINCTLY

Human Voice Is Greatest Of All Instruments, He Said, And Should Be Properly Trained and Cared For

"To lend to the rhyme of the poet the beauty of the voice" was the keynote of the address of Prof. Howard R. Driggs on "The Greatest of All Instruments," given in the College auditorium this morning.

Professor Driggs is delivering lectures at the College this week on the value of reading and its proper interpretation. He will give his last lecture tomorrow. He is also giving demonstration work before some of the classes of the College.

"The study of the mother tongue or the reading of a beautiful poem has the same effect on a person as the placing of a boquet of flowers on his desk," Professor Driggs said this morning. "Essentially and truly, the human voice is the greatest of all instruments. It contains a vibrating medium, as the vocal chords, a sounding board located in the head cavities and several sets of muscles as well.

"We should take proper pride in distinctly pronouncing all parts of a word such as the "ing" suffix. We obtained this largely through the influence of the southern races of Europe upon the pure Anglo-Saxon language. The music and charm of our language comes from the southern European peoples."

Professor Driggs claimed that people do not open the cavities, such as the mouth, sufficiently to allow a proper pronunciation of words. The voice is not given a chance to vibrate, he said, and this causes a slovenly pronunciation of words. Because it is much easier to pronounce words in a haphazard manner, we have gradually formed this habit, he said.

"Most of our trouble comes from failing to open our mouths when we speak. All organs of articulation must be used if we wish to be heard distinctly," he said.

Professor Driggs declared that the "hurry" habit which the American people had formed was one of the chief causes for the sloven pronunciation of words. He said that the reason why so many people underwent operations and suffered from nervous breakdowns, was because they did not know how to breath properly.

Professor Driggs will lecture at 10:15, o'clock tomorrow morning on "The Spirit of Authorship." It will be given in the auditorium of the College, and the public is invited.

Fight in Chillicothe on Sunday Movies

Chillicothe, Mo., June 14.—An organization has been perfected here to be known as the Public Rights league, which will protest against the ordinance recently passed to prohibit moving picture shows in Chillicothe on Sunday, and will make an effort to have the measure repealed. The ministers of the city last Sunday preached sermons against any such action and declared that the ordinance was passed in keeping with the wish of the majority of the people of the city as expressed in the last city election, in which it is asserted the issues were clearly drawn and the Sunday closing advocates won out.

A petition has been prepared and has been liberally signed, which asks that the ordinance be repealed, and the same will be presented to the city council for action. In the meantime the church people of the city will make an effort to keep the ordinance on the statute book of the city. About 600 persons attended the mass meeting that resulted in the formation of the Public Rights league.

Chautauqua Assn. May Now Keep Any Surplus

Prior to this ruling associations were compelled to pay an income tax or to turn over the funds to some charitable institution. The Maryville Chautauqua Association now has a surplus of about $70 and future profits will now go into this fund for protection against any deficits of bad years.

PRESERVE THINGS FLAG STANDS FOR

IS DUTY OF OUR PEOPLE, SAYS PRESIDENT HARDING

ADDRESSES THE LEGION

We Must Obligate Ourselves Farther Than Those Things Represented By The Flag, He Said

How To Treat The American Flag

Hang it at full mast today.

Remember—the flag is the symbol of your country. As such, the Stars and Stripes always should be given the place of honor, the forefront, the right of the highest elevation.

The starry field should be in the upper left when the flag is in a horizontal position; at the upper right when in a vertical position.

The flag has an inside and an outside. These rules are for the outside.

Don'ts

Don't twist the flag into fantastic designs.

Don't use it in any form of advertising.

Don't let it drag in the dust while handling it—even at unveilings.

Washington, June 14—It it the duty of the American people to maintain in this country "the things for which the American flag stands," President Harding declared today in a brief address before the national flag conference of the American Legion.

"We have an obligation quite apart from that of merely expressing reverence to the flag. Let us obligate ourselves farther to do always those things which the colors represent us to be," the President said.

Declaring that this was the test of American good citizenship and patriotism, the president said that reward was to be found "for all of us and obligation exists for the perpetuation of the ideals represented."

The Sante Fe and Frisco bridges over the North Canadia River are being weighed down by cars of gravel. Railroad traffic is still handicapped.

9 ARE KILLED IN SHIP FIGHT AT SEA

TWO WHITE MEN, TWO NEGROES AND FIVE CHINESE.

WERE BEING SMUGGLED

Small Sailing Vessel Bringing Them in—3 Dying at Ellis Island—Crew Attempted to Rob.

New York, June 14.—With her deck a veritable shambles, the little sailing vessel, Mary Beatrice, arrived here today with the story of a terrific fight at seas in which nine men were killed and a number of others were wounded. The bodies of the slain men were dumped overboard at the height of the attack.

Two of the dead were white men, two were negroes and five were Chinese. The casualties resulted from a battle between coolies and the crew. According to information in possession of the United States immigration authorities, the Chinese were being smuggled into New York for a fee of $500 apiece. The fight was said to have started when members of the crew attempted to rob the Chinese of other funds said to have amounted to more than a thousand dollars.

Three men are dying at the Ellis Island hospital. The Mary Beatrice sailed from Havana on May 8 and the captain of this vessel is said to have disappeared with $10,000. The nationality of the sailing vessel has not yet been established.

Half Minute Interviews

The question asked today was:

"Do you favor the opening of the Sanitary Swimming Pool on Sunday at the hours from 1 o'clock to 7 o'clock as specified?"

Dr. H. S. Dowell, physician: "I am in favor of it being open on Sunday It won't interfere with either morning or evening church services and I believe it is better to keep our young people at home than at the river or other amusement places. I see no more harm in it than other amusements that are indulged in on Sunday."

Will J. Montgomery, clothier: "I think the pool should be opened on Sunday. Sunday is the only time that many people have to enjoy it."

F. S. King, manager of Graham Store: "The old Puritan laws decreed against everything on Sunday not necessary to the preservation of life. But things have changed now If you draw the line against a properly conducted swimming pool on Sunday, you must draw the line on other amusements such as car riding, visiting and golf. If one is wrong then all is wrong. The young people are bound to go somewhere, so let them go to a properly conducted amusement place."

L. B. Tracy, Yehle Dry Goods Co.: "The only objection that I can see is the impression that might be given young people of turning Sunday over to hilarity and amusements and a general disrespect of the day."

D. E. Hotchkin of Hotchkin's Store: "I'm not in favor of a wide open town But Mr. Aley has gone more than half way in closing the pool during church hours. I believe there can be lots worse amusements on Sunday than this."

Mrs. C. F. Remus: "The ministers have taken a very commendable stand in opposing commercialized amusements on Sunday. But I would rather have young people going to the pool than indulging in some other forms of Sunday amusement. I see no more harm in this than motoring, golfing, picnicing, or other Sunday amusements."

Mrs. F. A. Bush: "I'm in favor of it being open. Why allow chautauquas, which are commercialized amusements, to operate on Sunday then? When they are in session the churches close and those who don't care to attend chautauqua must stay at home. All, who are able, belong to the Country Club and play golf, but they are in the minority and the majority must do something else. Yes, I'm in favor of it."

Croker Will Case Ready for Jury

Dublin, June 14.—The Croker will case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow as counsel for both sides are summing up today. Questions bearing upon the contentions of both sides were put to the jury by the presiding judge. Counsel for Mrs. Bulla Croker, widow and sole legatee of the late Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall of New York, claimed that the plaintiff has not established that Mrs. Croker was the legal wife of Guy Marone when she married the American politician in New York in 1914. It was contended also by Mrs. Croker's lawyers that evidence failed to prove that undue influence has been exerted upon Croker when he made his will cutting off his children by his first wife.

FARMERS EXCHANGE MEETS HERE TODAY

REPRESENTATIVES VOTE SUPPORT ST. JOSEPH EXCHANGE.

WM. HIRTH MAKES TALK

Head of Mo. Farmers Association Predicts Control of Markets by Farmers—40 Attend Meeting.

By almost a unanimous vote, the representatives of the cooperative marketing exchanges in Nodaway County agreed to support the St. Joseph produce exchange, at a meeting held in the Circuit Court room this afternoon. The representatives also voted to ask the Missouri Farmers Association to send an organization of men to Nodaway County in order to assist in obtaining the signatures of farmers to contracts agreeing to sell produce to the exchanges for a term not less than three years.

William Hirth of Columbia, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, addressed the meeting. He told of the work of the Association and what it had accomplished for the farmers of Missouri. He contended that the various marketing exchanges throughout Missouri had caused a higher price to be paid for farm products.

Hirth declared that the livestock markets of the United States will soon be controlled by the farmers of the country. It is the intention of the various state associations to gradually absorb the commission business in the yards. However, the association must remain wholesome and sane, he declared, and must not misuse this increased power.

"The farmers of America must control the markets of farm products just as much as the magnates of the country control the marketing of steel, oil and coal at the present time," Hirth said. "If we expect to keep the boys and girls on the farm we must provide means by which they can get a just price for the products which they raise. A nation can be no bigger than its farm and the condition of the rural population."

Hirth declared that agriculture must be put in such a position that the farmers of the country can demand the same sized dollar for his products that he pays the other fellow for his.

The Missouri Farmers Association desires that eggs and farm products can be sold for the highest price for qualities than the market can afford. The Association wants the farmers of this section of the state to sign contracts agreeing to sell their products only through their local exchanges which in turn will sell to the exchange at St. Joseph.

Hirth told the farmers of the results of the fruit, tobacco and cotton growers co-operative associations and said that the member farmers were obtaining a higher price for their products than was possible before the associations had been established.

He asserted that the day had come when the farmers of the country must organize in order to combat the packers, who want to destroy open, competive markets.

About forty persons were present at the meeting this afternoon.

Fate of Former Peasant Premier Still Unknown—Was Disguised and Fleeing To Turkey

Constantinople, June 14.—Communication between Turkey and Bulgaria has been cut off today. Turkey is sending troops to the Bulgarian frontier as a precautionary measure.

London, June 14.—The fate of Alexander Stambulisky, "fugitive peasant premier" of Bulgaria, was still unknown today. At the Bulgarian legation it was stated that no word as to actual conditions had been received.

Prague, June 14.—Heavy fighting is reported to have taken place in Bulgaria between the revolutionary troops and former supporters of Premier Stambulisky, said a dispatch from Belgrade today.

London, June 14—Bulgarian revolutionary leaders claim that former Premier Alexander Stambulisky, with three or four colleagues, is fleeing toward Constantinople pursued by troops, said a Sofia dispatch to the Evening News this afternoon. Stambulisky was said to have disguised himself by shaving off his mustache.

Powers Unfavorable to Extend 3-Mile Limit

According To High Diplomatic Opinion—Great Britain Won't Protest U. S. Dry Edict

Washington, June 14—Secretary of State Hughes' proposal to solve the "dry ship" dilemma by extending the 3-mile limit to twelve miles, has been accorded a distinctly cold reception by the foreign powers concerned, it became known today. While officials, speaking of the proposition, say it is now being "carefully considered" by the foreign officials in London, Paris, Tokio and other world capitals, there seems to be little likelihood that the treaties will ever be undertaken, according to high diplomatic opinion.

London, June 14—Despite newspaper demands the foreign office stated today that the British cabinet is not planning any formal protest against the American "dry ship" edict. Foreign office officials said that Great Britain is willing to enter an international conference to extend the 3-mile limit off the American coast if other nations consent.

Spencer Says France Is not Militaristic

Missouri Senator Returning From Europe Sees Peace When Reparation Is Settled

Washington, June 14—The world's largest standing army, 800,000, in service under the tri-colo of France, is insurance against a new world conflagration, Sen. Seldon P. Spencer, Republican of Missouri, declared today in an interview reviewing his recent European trip. Unlike many Americans returning from Europe, he said he did not believe that France was "militaristic." The great French army, he predicted, would be disbanded thirty days after a reparation agreement has been signed.

"The settlement of the one outstanding problem, reparations, will bring lasting peace to Europe," he declared. "The settlement of the reparation question, will give France a chance to restore her industrial activities, disband her army and remove the great cause of a new war," he added.

States rights is an ancient and respected doctrine now being hauled out of the closets as an excuse for defying the federal constitution by those who place "personal liberty" above all the fundamental of good government. "States rights" would secure to the states unhampered control of those questions which are peculiar to the states and local in character. The liquor question is bigger than any state and is the same in all the states. It is a problem that is nation wide. It calls up the doctrine that the welfare of society demands, in certain cases, that men be protected against their own weaknesses and against a common enemy of society. The doctrine of personal liberty is all right when applied to fundamental human rights but, when it means liberty to send men's souls to damnation through drink, it is wrong. It is the lamb's fleece used to cover the moonshiner, the bootlegger and the other wolves of human society.

Modern Dress Hit By Billy Sunday

Columbus, Ohio, June 14—"High society is so lowdown that it needs an airship to get to hell. The whole world needs the hose wash in God's bathhouse," shouted Billy Sunday, noted evangelist, addressing a local audience.

"Any fellow who can gaze upon one of the up-to-date janes and refrain from having a moral blowout ought to get a substantial pension," continued Sunday. "No one can tell me that a man can look upon a girl as she is dressed today with prayer-meeting thoughts in his mind. As I study the fashion plates I will tell you the moral of the age. No one can tell me that dress has no bearing on the morals of men and women. I like to see a person dressed neatly. A person can be modest and still be neat.

"I watch tired, weary, jaded, anaemic pleasure-seekers roll from the theatres and I pity them," said Sunday, declaring that pleasures and riches do not satisfy the soul and that men seek these dissipations when they really are longing for rest. "Drunken, faded-out club-men pile into their cars in the early hours of morning and go home to perfumed baths and their servants tuck them in bed between luxuriant white sheets.

"No dog ever had anything but a dog for a daddy," asserted Sunday, who said that "evolution is infidelic" and that no man who believes in the Darwinian theory "can call himself a Christian."

"Wouldn't you feel ashamed of yourself if you believed man gained superiority over woman by fighting for her so religiously when he was a chivalrous monkey that his brain power automatically was increased? And a better joke is the one of how man disposed of the monkey hair on his body. The lady monkeys didn't like the hair, so they picked the most hairless for their mates. To please the ladies man gradually got rid of the hair on his body and became a human being."

Has Been a Member Twenty-eight Years

(Hopkins Journal)

A boy with his first pair of red top boots is often proud as well as the girl with her first "feller," but neither could be half as proud as Ed Chamness is of the Veterans Jewel recently given him by the I. O. O. F. lodge—a very beautiful gold badge featuring the three links—a badge given every member who has been with the lodge twenty-five consecutive years, and Ed is the only member of the local lodge entitled to it, having been a member twenty-eight years and should have received the jewell three years ago.

The I. O. O. F. lodge was organized here May 20, 1875, and the first names on the historical register will be remembered only by older inhabitants of Hopkins, being J. L. Anderson, "little Johnny," at one time marshal of the town; G. W. Wilcox, J. A. Worth, Harmon Lowry, James M. Pierce, founder of the Journal; E. A. Bugbee, N. S. Arnold, Cyrus White, Harvey Morehouse, Stanton Hook, Wm. Herbert, C. Green and Hank Southerland.

The first noble grand was J. L. Anderson and the first secretary was J. A. Worth.

At the time Ed Chamness was initiated into the order, Al F. Reeder was the Noble Grand; Will K. Shelton, vice-grand and Harry Manley, secretary.

The officers at present are Will E. Orme, noble grand; C. F. Fleming, vice grand; C. B. Wood, secretary and C. A. Pennington, treasurer.

Officers for the coming year have been elected and will be installed the first of July, being C. F. Fleming, noble grand; Fred Reeder, vice-grand; C. B. Wood secretary and C. A. Pennington, treasurer.

The lodge now has a membership of ninety-five and is said to be in better shape than at any time in the forty-eight years of its life.

It follows through — there is no halfhearted piston stroke; neither is there a slapping piston stroke to rack your engine. Instead, Red Crown imparts a steady, steam-engine-like pressure to the piston that sustains and follows through the length of the stroke. That explains both the smooth flow of rhythmic power and the abundance of sustained pulling power. Red Crown offers to the motorist

Motter, internal revenue collector at Wichita, for the sum of $1,818,866.83, which represents the second quarter's installment of the Santa Fe system's income tax for the year of 1922.

This, with the state, county and other local taxes in the eleven other states, in which the Santa Fe operates, makes this company one of the heaviest taxpayers in the United States.

A PLEASANT PLACE FOR GENTLE FOLKS.

DEFIED THE TOUCH OF TIME

Sarah Bernhardt's Remark to Ellen Terry Reveals Character of Great French Actress.

On an evening some twenty-five years ago Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was the guest of Sir Henry Irving at one of those intimate little supper parties in the Beefsteak room of the Lyceum theater over which he loved to preside, Comyns Carr writes in the London Times. The English actor was socially always at his best when his day's work was done, and his gracious hospitality provoked in those he gathered around his table a sense of ease and intimacy that was scarcely to be matched in any other of the bohemian entertainments of the time. During her repeated visits to England Mme. Bernhardt was constantly to be counted among his guests; and in the art of Sir Henry Irving, which she never wearied of praising, she found, I think that note of strong personality which is also the surviving characteristic of all her own work in the theater. On that particular occasion, as I remember, our talk concerned itself with the age at which some of the great actors of the past had produced their finest effects; when on a sudden Mme. Bernhardt, leaning across the table toward Miss Ellen Terry, exclaimed in her broken English, which lost nothing of force from its imperfection, "My dear, there are two peoples in this world which shall never be old—you and me."

RUSHED TO GOAT'S DEFENSE

Small Boy's Argument Would Have to Be Admitted Both Logical and Reasonable.

David's grandpa, who lived in the country, sent him a pet goat recently. David's family was 100 per cent against the goat, but grandpa insisted that the boy ought to have a pet, and, of course, David was strong for the idea.

Mother fussed a lot about the animal, but David and the goat got through the first week without being kicked out of the house and home, and everything had about quieted down. Then one day the goat got on a rampage. Before he was discovered he had devoured a tablecloth, dad's shoe rag, a sack of clothespins and sister Nellie's favorite mail-order catalogue.

"David, this is absolutely the limit!" mother exclaimed. "You've got to get rid of that goat, and get rid of him now! Do you think I can have that animal around here eating up the clothes and the furniture?"

"Gee whiz!" David exclaimed. "Don't you suppose a goat ever gets hungry?" —Kansas City Star.

Couldn't Understand.

Recently a member of the police department was sued for divorce. A man was sent to police headquarters to serve the papers on him. The man unfortunately, was directed to the sergeant's desk and mistaking the sergeant for the defendant in the suit started to read the papers without mentioning the defendant's name.

The desk sergeant listened patiently. Gradually his mouth drooped, a sorrowful expression came into his eyes and he appeared dejected.

"I can't understand that," he said. "I was only married last December. I just rented a new house and bought some new furniture and two tons of coal. Gosh, she appeared cheerful and happy when I left this morning. I don't see what's the matter."

A few minutes later the mistake was noticed and the desk sergeant showed his relief, and the man with the papers went in search of the defendant.—Indianapolis News.

Shark That Swam in Kansas Sea.

Agassizodus variabilis, a shark from Kansas, will soon have his once wicked teeth brought to foodless rest in the National museum. Dr. George P. Merrill, curator of geology, has received as a gift from Dr. Frank Springer the paleontological collections of the late Orestes St. John which contained the fossil remains of this unique fish which chased its prey through a Kansas sea many million years ago.

The cartilaginous body of the shark disintegrated, but a complete set of teeth, such as has never been found elsewhere, remained in the coal measures of Kansas to tell his story. Doctor St. John gave the name Agassizodus to his find in honor of the famous Harvard naturalist, Louis Agassiz, who was his teacher.

Lessons From Rain.

When an inch of rain falls on an area the size, say of Pennsylvania, how much water is that?

Do not bother to calculate it; we did it. And it figures out the very tidy little total of 3,282,609,000 tons of pure, distilled water. Every ounce of it was drawn up from the oceans transported without charge across plains and mountains, and deposited gently where needed. He is ungrateful who complains of the occasional perversity of the weather and the rainfall, and blind indeed who cannot see in those vast, silent movements of winds and water the finger of a living God.—Farm Journal.

Museum Devoted to Indian Life.

For the purpose of studying the aborigines of the Americas, a new museum has been erected in New York city, where investigations of Indian life may be conducted. The institution, which already contains 1,800,000 specimens of aboriginal life on this continent, is the only one in the world devoted exclusively to the preservation of the records of these early races.

CHINCH BUGS CAN BE ERADICATED

EXPERIMENTS PROVE CALCIUM CYANIDE WILL DESTROY PEST

APPLICATION IS EASY

Experiments Show That Chemical Be Used Daily During Periods Of Greatest Migration

Experiments that are being conducted by the entomology department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri have proved that the use of calcium cyanide is a sure means of exterminating the chinch bug. The new method is effective because it kills the bugs, while the old methods used in combating them such as the use of oils and plowed dust furrows, act only as a repellant.

As the method of applying calcium cyanide is a new one, some problems have yet to be worked out, according to Dr. Leonard Haseman, of the entomology department. A method umts worked out by wihch to get the best results. The quantity of calcium cyanide used must be small enough that it can be used economically by the farmer. The department recommends the following method of treatment:

Plow a furrow along the edge of the field and make a dust emulsion in the bottom of it by dragging a post or log in the furrow. Apply the compound, which is usually in flake form, in the bottom of the furrow, distributing it at the rate of one pound of compound to every sixty feet. Apply the treatment daily during the period of migration of the chinch bugs, which lasts from ten to fifteen days.

The treatment prescribed has been used successfully in combating the mature bug, and it is thought that a smaller amount will be sufficient in eradicating the young bug.

The compound used costs 18 cents per pound, and Doctor Haseman believes that the farmer can afford to spend in many instances as much as $2 an acre on his crop in eradicating the bug.

The corn crop is the one most affected now, as the bugs are leaving the wheat fields, which are ripening and no longer afford them food.

ELMO ITEMS

(L. W. James)

The main topic is what shall the harvest be. So many fields of wheat being plowed up and put to corn. Most all the early corn was planted over. It is all coming on fine now, with generally good stand.

Robert Spangler fed and shipped a car fat cattle which made a nice profit.

The old No. 8 school house is being torn down and hauled away.

The high water took the only wood bridge between Elmo and the State line. The county, township, and some men replaced it with a good one, 40 foot long, of 3 inch cypress.

Chas Severs sold a strip of land on the east and south part of his farm for road purposes to the township.

There have been 47 young foxes and 6 young wolves caught this year. There were 54 foxes caught last year. They are being chased by hounds but only at night so no one can shoot them.

Mrs. L. W. James has sold 1,300 young fries and has 1,300 left. That is something to crow about.

More new and second hand cars sold this year than every before around here.

We have the nest crop of white clover we have had in several years.

The Mill Creek dredge boat and two houses on wheels that wintered in Elmo are being dismantled and shipped away.

Less petty stealing and more plain drinks than for a long time.

Henry Ford has a car for every one-half mile of public roads in the U. S., and they all point to the White House, somebody is liable to get run over.

RARE EAGLE IN LONDON ZOO

New Arrival Has Easy Time of It, if He Can Forget He Is a Prisoner.

"Tim," a large white-tailed sea eagle from Mesopotamia, presented by Sir Percy Cox, has just arrived at the zoo and is vying with the sea lions in the profitable pastime of catching fish thrown by the keeper.

Though the newcomer is the sole representative of his species in the garden the white-tailed sea eagle was, at one time, fairly common in England as far south as the Lake district.

Now it is verging on extinction in these islands, there being only a few pairs left, which nest on the inaccessible cliffs of the west of Scotland and Ireland.

To look at this feathered giant of the air, you would think him particularly fierce and unapproachable, but "Tim's" appearance is deceptive, for he is really quite tame.

Under the tuition of his keeper, he is speedily becoming proficient in the art of aerial sprat-catching—which probably accounts for his docility.

"Tim" seems wise enough to realize that catching "flying fish" is better than swooping at keeper's caps, as some of his kindred do, and for his good conduct he is occasionally rewarded with a nice home-bred rat, by way of a change.

Eagles, however, are treacherous birds, and the keeper is quite as watchful as "Tim" when in his company.—A. E. H., in London Daily Chronicle.

SPIDER NOT REALLY INSECT

Fundamental Difference Which Has Been Recognized by Those Who Have Studied the Subject.

Spiders and their near relatives, the scorpions, are much more closely related to lobsters than they are to true insects. Spiders and insects are both small, both have a number of legs, and both appear superficially alike. The differences between them, however, are of a major sort.

First, as you will see if you examine one, a spider has no head. All real insects have heads. Herein lies a most fundamental difference. A spider's face comes directly to the thorax, like that of a crawfish. Every insect has eyes, both compound and simple. The compound eyes are usually large, occupying half or more of the entire head. Between them, in what would be the middle of the forehead, are three simple eyes. Spiders have eight (in some species only six) simple eyes. Each one is fixed and can see in one direction only. Some look forward; some sideways, and some upward, so that spiders are not blind by any means.

Advice Was Disastrous.

He was a newly admitted member of the ranks of married men and after having behaved himself for a period long enough to cause amazement to all those who had known him in the old days he broke out. He was on his way home very much under the weather and growing more timid as his street neared, says a New York Sun writer.

"What'll I do?" he asked thickly of his companion in crime, a veteran benedict.

"Throw your hat in first," said the old-timer. "If it comes out, beat it; if not, follow it in."

The advice was acted upon literally and now the newly admitted member and the old veteran are on the outs. The hat flung into the dining room landed on the table, broke two glasses spilt a bottle of catsup on the floor and ruined the carpet, upset the table oil lamp and almost set fire to the house.

Health Talks by Radio.

In his nationwide campaign to prevent the spread of disease and to give impetus to his efforts for the medical education of the country, Dr. Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon-general of the United States Public Health service, has turned to the radio. Twice each week he sends his messages from the government radio station at Washington and from commercial stations.

The surgeon-general is a Virginian and was graduated in medicine from the University of Virginia. For a number of years he was quarantine officer at Hampton Roads, and most of his work prior to his present duties, had to do with quarantine regulations. At the time of his appointment he was in Naples fighting a typhoid epidemic.—New York Herald.

Tempt the Child's Taste.

With the value of milk to the growing child so well known, it is a common occurrence for the school child to wish to carry milk to drink at recess time. This is a good habit, as it answers for both food and drink. The difficulty is in carrying it safely to school. The top of a stocking sewed together at one end and shaped into a handle with the edges stitched, or with a small piece of black tape sewed on for a handle, makes a very good milk carrier. If the child should stumble the carrier protects the little ½-pint bottle of milk. This may be taken through a straw, which may be obtained at school or carried in its paper container.

Odd Experience.

At high school we were preparing for our semiannual examinations. The night before the exciting event took place I had to go away and had not studied my French at all. That night I dreamed we were having our examination in French. You can imagine my astonishment when the teacher wrote the very same questions I had dreamed of on the board.

MISS DOW LEAVES FOR SMITH COLLEGE REUNION

Miss Blanche Dow, head of the dramatic department of the College, left last night for Northampton, Mass., to attend the annual reunion of alumni of Smith College. While there she will attend the reception of ex-presidents of the dramatic club there, she being a former president. Miss Dow will also attend the exercises of the School of Expression at Boston. She expects to be gone about a week.

U. S. Women Presented at English Court

London, June 14—American women, who were presented to King George and Queen Mary at the court, made a most favorable impression and were received most cordially, Mrs. E. L. Crockett, of Kentucky stated today. Mrs. Crockett was one of the dozen American women at last night's court. She formerly lived in Oklahoma City.

"Before going to court I wondered whether it would be an ordeal or an experience, but everyone was so gracious and cordial, it was a pleasant experience," she said. "I was not frightened or embarassed because we were treated so wonderfully, and the American women made a most favorable impression. I was proud of them," she declared.

Local Women Arrive at Father's Bedside

Mrs. J. T. Wells and Mrs. George Coler arrived in Mercedes, Texas, last night according to word received today. They left Maryville Saturday afternoon being summoned by the illness of their father, J. L. Charles, who died at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Coler were delayed for more than a day en route because of flood conditions. No word has been received by Maryville relatives concerning the funeral arrangements.

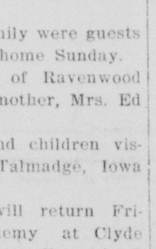
Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:



"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

On March 31, 1920, Mrs. Partridge said: "I wish to confirm my former statement as to the benefits obtained from using Doan's Kidney Pills. I have had no return of the trouble and I am glad to say Doan's have permanently cured me."

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I was weak and run-down and had trouble with my side. I had been taking medicine for a long time and nothing seemed to do me any good. OLD GLORY 146 YEAR OLD TODAY

TODAY IS BIRTHDAY OF THE NATION'S BANNER.

OLDEST FLAG KNOWN

"Father of Country" Sketched Original Design, Amended by Betsy Ross.

Old Glory celebrates its 146th birthday anniversary today. Just a little less than a year after the signing of the Declaration of Independence—June 14, 1776—congress approved the first national flag, fashioned by Betsy Ross in her little cottage at 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, and adopted it as the standard emblem for the thirteen United States.

While visiting in Philadelphia in June, 1776, George Washington, accompanied by Robert Morris, the nation's treasurer in the Revolution, and Col. George Ross, a signer of the Declaration of Independence from Pennsylvania, and an uncle of the originator of Old Glory, called at the home of Betsy Ross to ask her to make the first banner. The result of the visit is well known, but perhaps the incidents of the discussion which resulted in the flag which we have today are not so familiar.

Washington Sketched Flag

Washington had brought with him a rough sketch of the flag as he thought it should be fashioned. He showed the drawing to Betsy Ross with the result that she made suggestions that led to a new pencil sketch being drawn in the little back parlor of her home. Instead of having stars with six points the famous seamstress showed the committee how much handsomer a star with five points appeared in the blue field of the flag. Her suggestion was well received, and she succeeded also in convincing her callers that the stars ought to be arranged in a circular pattern instead of being set haphazardly. The flag, later produced in accordance with the specifications, pleased the committee, and was adopted without change by congress, on the fourteenth day of the same month.

In adopting the new flag as the national emblem, Congress resolved "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field representing a new constellation."

Streamed From Warcrafts' Masts

Soon afterward, the Stars and Stripes were flying from the masts of every American naval vessel. The colors were carried abroad later that same year when the American ship "Ranger," commanded by Captain Paul Jones, sailed into a French port December 1, 1777. A little more than two months later, February 14, 1778, this flag received the first salute ever offered the American flag by foreign naval vessels.

For nearly eight years after its adoption the flag remained unchanged. In May, 1795, when Kentucky and Vermont were admitted to the Union, congress passed a law increasing the number of stars and stripes to fifteen each. April 4, 1818, however, when five other states came into the Union, the flag was reduced to the original thirteen stripes, and the number of stars was increased to twenty. Since that time no essential change has been made in the flag, and whenever a new state is admitted, a new star is placed in the field of the flag.

In the war with Mexico the field of the flag had twenty-nine stars; in the Civil War it bore thirty-five; July 4, 1891, the number was increased to forty-five and today forty-eight states are represented.

First Flown in Stanwix Siege

It is not known exactly how soon after its adoption the new flag was carried by American soldiers in battle. However, the flag was flown at the siege of Fort Stanwix, which stood near the present site of Rome, N. Y., in August, 1777. It was carried by American soldiers at the battle of Brandywine, September 11, 1777, and again at the battle of Germantown, October 4 in the same year. When the British troops under General Burgoyne surrendered October 17, 1777, the Stars and Stripes were again in evidence.

Some mention has been made of a resemblance between the symbols in the coat-of-arms of George Washington and the symbols and colors of the first flag. Although there is no proof of any connection, the suggestion is an interesting one. The coat-of-arms of Washington, who was a descendand of an old English family, contained alternate red and white stripes and was decorated with three stars. It is quite possible the design and symbols of his family's shield may have suggested to him the motif for the sketch he submitted to Betsy Ross.

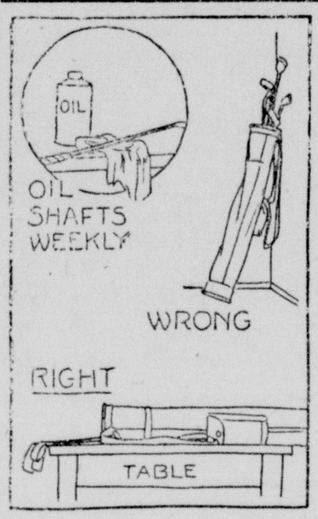
Oldest "Civilized" Banner

Old Glory has the distinction of being the oldest flag of any civilized nation. It is twenty-three years older than the present flag of Great Britain, seventeen years older than the tricolor of France, nearly one hundred years older than the national emblems of either Germany or Italy, and eight years older than the flag of Spain.

Today marks the twenty-sixth anniversary of the celebration of Flag day throughout the nation. The day was first observed in 1861, at Hartford, Conn., with flag ceremonies and patriotic programs. The general celebration of Flag day in the public schools of the country began in the schools of Philadelphia in 1898.

The quaint little old brick birthplace of the flag, at 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, is still standing, scarcely changed from what it was a century and a half ago.

Golf Pointers



What care do clubs require?

Answered by
LAURIE AYTON

Always a consistent place winner in the big tournaments—National open, Metropolitan Open, Western Open, and sectional tournaments. Famed for his accuracy and steadiness under fire.

After playing, it is a good practice to wipe the clubs free of any moisture which might cause them to warp. The shafts should be lightly oiled every week or so. Any fraying of the grip or binding threads should be tended to immediately by an expert. The best way to keep the clubs when not in use is to place them across a table as shown above.

Leave for Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Green and children, John Earl and Geraldine, and Mrs. Mary Lahr of Watertown, S. Dak., who have been visiting the latter's daughter, Mrs. Burt Rowley, and family, and Mr. Green's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Green, left this morning to visit in Lincoln, Neb., en route to California where they will locate. They are making the trip by automobile.
